Title:

Effective teams - the secret of success

Abstract:

The subject of 'Effective teams - the secret of success' attracts the attention of people working in various disciplines. The topic of team building and management is hot. It seems that there are similar mechanisms in building success-minded groups in science, business and sport.

This lecture will focus on what can be used from the team building business experience as well as what can be transferred from successful sport teams management. We will provide insight in the importance of multidimensional skills and what elements are key in managing diverse groups working together. We will also share the experience of running small, niche projects, and those large ones that involve hundreds of people.
